Jennings Randolph Program for International Peace

This book is a fine example of the work produced by senior fellows in the Jennings Randolph Fellowship Program of the United States Institute of Peace. As part of the statute establishing the Institute, Congress envisioned a program that would appoint “scholars and leaders of peace from the United States and abroad to pursue scholarly inquiry and other appropriate forms of communication on international peace and conflict resolution.” The program was named after Senator Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, whose efforts over four decades helped to establish the Institute.

Since 1987, the Jennings Randolph Program has played a key role in the Institute’s effort to build a national center of research, dialogue, and education on critical problems of conflict and peace. More than a hundred senior fellows from some thirty nations have carried out projects on the sources and nature of violent international conflict and the ways such conflict can be peacefully managed or resolved. Fellows come from a wide variety of academic and other professional backgrounds. They conduct research at the Institute and participate in the Institute’s outreach activities to policymakers, the academic community, and the American public.

Each year approximately fifteen senior fellows are in residence at the Institute. Fellowship recipients are selected by the Institute’s board of directors in a competitive process. For further information on the program, or to receive an application form, please contact the program staff at (202) 457-1700.

Joseph Klaits
Director

Warren P. Strobel is the White House and former State Department correspondent for the Washington Times. During 1994–95, Strobel was a senior fellow in the Jennings Randolph Fellowship Program at the United States Institute of Peace. His analyses of the news media and peace operations have appeared in the American Journalism Review and Managing Global Chaos: Sources of and Responses to International Conflict (U.S. Institute of Peace Press).
