Scott Snyder has been an Asia specialist in the Research and Studies Program of the United States Institute of Peace since 1994. During 1998–99, he conducted independent research in Tokyo and Seoul as an Abe Fellow of the Social Sciences Research Council. He has written on the political and security implications of the Asian financial crisis and on regional island disputes in Asia. A former acting director of the Contemporary Affairs department of the Asia Society in New York, Snyder received a B.A. from Rice University and an M.A. from the Regional Studies East Asia Program at Harvard University. He was the recipient of a Thomas G. Watson Fellowship in 1987–88 and attended Yonsei University in South Korea.

UNITED STATES INSTITUTE OF PEACE

The United States Institute of Peace is an independent, nonpartisan federal institution created by Congress to promote research, education, and training on the peaceful management and resolution of international conflicts. Established in 1984, the Institute meets its congressional mandate through an array of programs, including research grants, fellowships, professional training, education programs from high school through graduate school, conferences and workshops, library services, and publications. The Institute's Board of Directors is appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate.
