Ted Robert Gurr is distinguished university professor at the University of Maryland and is founder and director of the Minorities at Risk project, based at the university's Center for International Development and Conflict Management. He has written or edited twenty books and monographs, including the award-winning Why Men Rebel, Violence in America, Ethnic Conflict in World Politics, and Minorities at Risk.

Professor Gurr has taught at Princeton University, Northwestern University, and the University of Colorado. He has held a Ford Foundation faculty fellowship, a Guggenheim fellowship, a German Marshall Fund senior fellowship, and a Fulbright senior fellowship. In 1988–89 he was a peace fellow at the United States Institute of Peace. He was president of the International Studies Association in 1993–94, and in 1996–97 he held the Swedish government's Olaf Palme Visiting Professorship at the University of Uppsala. Since 1994 he has been senior consultant to the White House–initiated State Failure Task Force.

United States Institute of Peace

The United States Institute of Peace is an independent, nonpartisan federal institution created by Congress to promote research, education, and training on the peaceful management and resolution of international conflicts. Established in 1984, the Institute meets its congressional mandate through an array of programs, including research grants, fellowships, professional training, education programs from high school through graduate school, conferences and workshops, library services, and publications. The Institute's Board of Directors is appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate.
