About the Author

Gabriel Weimann is professor of communication at Haifa University and a former Senior Fellow at the United States Institute of Peace. A prolific analyst of terrorism and the mass media, he has written five books, including Communicating Unreality, The Influentials: People Who Influence People, The Theater of Terror, Hate on Trial, and The Singaporean Enigma. He has also written more than one hundred book chapters and articles, including papers in the Journal of Communication, Public Opinion Quarterly, Communication Research, Journal of Broadcasting and Electronic Media, and American Sociological Review. He received numerous grants and awards from international foundations, including the Fulbright Foundation, the Canadian-Israeli Foundation, the Alexander von Humboldt-Stiftung, the German National Research Foundation, the Sasakawa Foundation, and United States Institute of Peace. He has also held visiting professorships at universities throughout the world, including the University of Pennsylvania, Stanford University, Hofstra University, Lehigh University, Universitaet Mainz (Germany), the National University of Singapore, and Carleton University in Ottawa, Canada.

United States Institute of Peace

The United States Institute of Peace is an independent, nonpartisan federal institution created by Congress to promote the prevention, management, and peaceful resolution of international conflicts. Established in 1984, the Institute meets its congressional mandate through an array of programs, including research grants, fellowships, professional training, education programs from high school through graduate school, conferences and workshops, library services, and publications. The Institute's Board of Directors is appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate.
